

Small Team, Small Budget? Yes, You Can Hire a Developer

#ona16dev

11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17, 2016

Thomas Thoren, journalist & developer, The Lens NOLA | @ThomasJThoren

Erin Skarda, digital editor, 5280 Magazine | @ErinLeighSkarda

RESOURCES

Resources for Media Developers

Lone Coders Club on Slack: developers and data journalists who don't have the luxury of being part of a large team in their newsrooms.

News Nerderly group on Slack: journalists and developers of all stripes.

NICAR National Institute for Computer-Assisted Reporting. The annual conference is in March.

Part of IRE (Investigative Reporters and Editors)

SRCCON (Source-Con): A conference for developers, designers, and data analysts in newsrooms—and many others in allied roles and fields. The annual conference is in July.

ONA (Online News Association): Also offers developer-focused sessions that are specific to the media industry.

Institute for Nonprofit News \(INN\) Technology Workshop (Sept. 28-29 in Chicago): Executives, editors and news technologists come together to improve technical literacy.

Articles

Lonely Coders, Here's How to Get Things Done \(Source\) by Tyler Machado, developer at Harvard Business Review

Want to start a small data journalism team in your newsroom? Here are 8 steps \(Nieman\) by Scott Klein, deputy managing editor at ProPublica

NPR Visuals is trying to reduce the effects of privilege while hiring \(Poynter\) by Gurman Bhatia

A thing about recruiting... by Brian Boyer, former editor of NPR Visuals